"Integrating Movement Methods"

This workshop will integrate elements from various movement forms (CI, martial arts, dance, bodywork) to expand our choices and possibilities for Contact Improvisation, as well as developing skills for moving in and out of contact seamlessly. How can we use elements of different movement forms to create dance that moves us physically, emotionally, and in spirit?

Ray Chung is a performer, teacher, researcher, engineer, and artist who has worked with Contact Improvisation and improvisation since 1979. He uses Contact Improvisation as part of improvisational performance practice and integrates other movement forms into his work, including martial arts, bodywork and Authentic Movement. He regularly collaborates with dancers, musicians, and other artists and has worked with Nancy Stark Smith, Steve Paxton, Lisa Nelson, Peter Bingham, Chris Aiken, and others. Ray's work has been shown in festivals and venues throughout Europe, Japan, South America, Canada, and the U.S. He has also danced in pieces directed by Anna Halprin, Judith Kajiwarra, and George Coates. He currently resides in San Francisco and regularly travels abroad to teach and perform.
